HACKNEY HORSE FOR SOUTHERN FARMER

"International," English Champion Hackney.

(By J. M. BELL.)

The Hackney is one of the best paying horses that the southern farmer can raise and he is increasing in popularity each year.

The numerous horse shows now held in the South have given a great impetus to horse breeding.

There are many things to be said in favor of the Hackney and there are good reasons for his popularity as a harness horse. Among them are his very stylish appearance, high action, good size and tractability. Beside, he is a good seller on the market.

The southern farmer is a natural born lover of a good horse and the South has been the home of the thoroughbred for probably two centuries.

It may be said of the Hackney that he crosses well with other breeds, especially with the trotter, the thoroughbred or the draft horse. The Hackney-trotter cross is one of the most useful horses than can be raised on the average farm, inheriting as they do from the sire the substance that enable them to do the heaviest kind of farm work as well as making a capital family horse. The rotundity of form that at once stamps them as easy to keep, their pleasing conformation, along with good, clean legs and sound feet catch the buyer's eye.

The cross of the Hackney on the thoroughbred has resulted in a good park hack with bone, substance and style.

The cross of a Hackney stallion on draft mares should give a heavy harness or coach horse, being careful to breed to clean limbed, well-shaped nates of solid color also possessing some degree of action.

There are sections all over the South where natural conditions are such that the breeding of high-class harness horses is a most profitable pursuit to the wide-awake, energetic farmer who is not afraid to invest his money in fine bred stock for breeding purposes.

SOY BEANS GAINING IN FAVOR

Choice of Variety Should Be Governed by Purpose of Crop—Black Beauty Makes Good Hay.

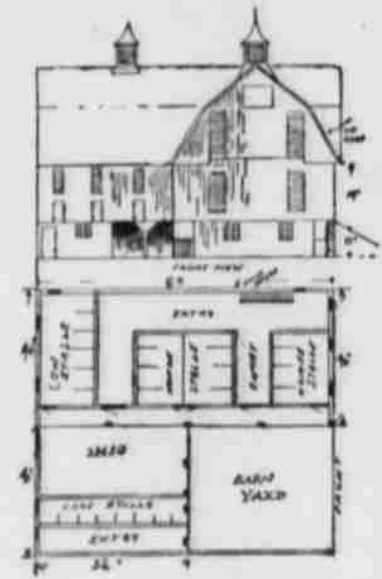

(By J. C. HACKLEMAN, Missouri Experiment Station.)

Soy beans are rapidly gaining in favor among the farmers of Missouri, and in many parts of the state are replacing cowpeas as a seed crop. The fact that they can be seeded earlier, are easier harvested, easier threshed and usually outyield the cowpeas explains, in part, this gain in favor. Several varieties are to be recommended, but the choice of a variety should be governed by the purpose of the crop. When grown for hay, such varieties as Ebony or black beauty, medium yellow or mongol, peking or sable and Austin, will be found among the best. Where seed is wanted, this list may be enlarged to include Mikado and Halberlandt. If a late maturing, rather coarse-growing crop is wanted for pasture and green manuring purposes, the mammoth yellow and Hollybrook are good.

HANDY BARN A LABOR SAVER

Services of One Man May Be Done Away With by Arrangement of Building—Few Important Things.

Good barns cost money, but when the farmer once knows that by the proper construction of his barn and other outbuildings he can save the work of a man, it will readily become clear to him that the investment will pay big interest in the long run.

There are a few things that are absolutely necessary in the farm barn. It must be well lighted, well ventilated, easy to keep clean, so arranged as to economize space, so that as much stock as possible can be housed. It should be easy of access, and its location should be such as to insure a well drained barn yard. With the above features incorporated into the farm barn, the shape or style of the building matters little.

Hog Needs Attention.

Something is the matter with the pig whose hair is turned the wrong way and who carries around a ball of mud on the end of his tail. He may have the mange or the scours or be lousy. He needs the attention of the owner to help him out of his trouble.

HARM BY PEACH-TREE BORER

Most Destructive of Numerous Insect Pests That Attack Fruit Trees—One Effective Remedy.

(By C. J. HAYDEN, Mississippi Experiment Station.)

The eggs are deposited by the adult in spring and early summer on the trunks of the trees. In time the eggs are hatched and the larvae begin their work of destruction. None of the trees are immune from the ravages of this insect, because this pest has been widely disseminated, there being no section entirely free from its attack.

The only effective remedy that is recommended is to dig them out. This work should be done in early winter or some time before growth begins in spring. Secure competent labor, exercising care not to injure the bark any more than necessary. Remove the soil from around the trunk and with a sharp knife or rasp, scrape off the gummy exudation and cut out all injured tissue, destroying the larvae as they are found.

Trees that are badly infected should be gone over several times, once in early winter and again in spring. After the spring "worming," mound the earth about the trunks. This is much cheaper and is to be recommended in preference to the wrapping of the trees with paper or painting with some coal tar preparation.

LET LAND ALONE WHEN WET

Specialists Believe Soil Is Injured by Being Plowed When Too Moist—Some Few Exceptions.

(By W. R. DODSON, Louisiana Experiment Station.)

It is generally believed by soil specialists that soil is very apt to be injured by being plowed when it is too wet, whether sunshine prevail after the plowing or not, though the damage is greatly lessened where rain follows soon after the land is plowed. Exceptions to this would be in sod land with good deep sod, or land that is naturally inclined to be excessively porous. I am unable to give a satisfactory physical explanation, but I believe it is generally conceded that land that is plowed wet will pack more in a subsequent rain than if it had not been stirred while wet. I think under all ordinary circumstances it would pay to let the land alone when it is too wet to crumble behind the plow.

CARE FOR FARM IMPLEMENTS

Considerable Portion of American Farmer's Profits Eaten Up By Willful Neglect of Machinery.

It is to be hoped that no farmer put away his implements last winter without having cleaned and oiled them thoroughly and that they are now well housed. The farm machinery man at Clemson college states that a considerable portion of the profits of the American farmer is eaten up by neglect of farm machinery. When going over a piece of machinery note if any parts are missing, mark down the names of these parts on tags and attach the tags to the places on the machine from which the parts are missing. This will often prove very helpful.

10.7 BUSHELS PER ACRE.

The final estimate of the wheat yield in the State for 1915 is 10.7 bushels per acre. This is short of last year's yield by approximately two bushels. The continued rains damaged the quality of the wheat a great deal, and the average estimated damage throughout the state is 8c per bushel. The average price on the farm is approximately 95c per bushel. This is about 25c per bushel higher than the farmers obtained who sold their wheat from the threshers in 1914.

BIRD IN THE HAND.

Judge Flem Gordon has been circuit judge down in the Fourth judicial district for ten years. He had a laudable ambition to be judge of the court of appeals. He could have probably been elected to his old place without opposition. He ran a very bad last in a three-cornered race for appellate judge, and now finds himself out of a place. Even Judges do not always know a good thing when they see it.

WHAT LOVE IS?

"Love," writes the editor of an Eastern paper, "is at first an illusion and then a delusion."

We can't remember just who this editor is, nor in what paper the quotation appeared, but we'll bet our Sunday-go-to-meetin' boiled shirt that he walks backwards and that instead of good red blood there flows through his veins the sourest of vinegar.

Probably somewhere back in his purple, palpitating past there was a girl who passed him by and married the other fellow, and ever since the carking canker of crabbedness has been eating away at that which once beat as his heart.

Love a delusion!

By all the golden, sunny ringlets on the brow of Cupid, by all the sweet lips that ever puckered into a rosebud to receive the kiss of a lover, we swear that love is no delusion.

Does a delusion make the world go 'round? Is the blue sky an illusion?

Is it an illusion when our cardiac pumping station goes all a-flutter at the soft-whispered words of the sweetest girl God ever made?

Is it an illusion when we thrill in every nerve if a tiny, soft, velvety hand chances to linger, just for an instant, in ours, as we look into a pair of eyes whose limpid depths make the profundity of the ocean seem shallow as a mud puddle?

Is it an illusion when the very marrow in our spinal column freezes if we hear that "THE" girl has a date with another fellow?

Is it an illusion when the buries her face behind the lapel of our coat, shyly nods her little head and answers "yes" when we ask her the greatest question in the world? Is it? IS it?

We should say NOT!

Love is the concentrated essence of goodness, sprinkled upon the tender petals of a crystallized violet. It comes sky-hooping down from the high heavens on a mellow moonbeam, entwines its silken tendrils about your fluttering heart until your breath comes in short, quick, ecstatic gasps and your soul just seems to float away on a billow of sea-foam to the Island of Rosebuds and Orange Blossoms.

Love an illusion?

It is NOT. And believe me, we know.

We've tried it often enough.

DRUG STORE FOR SALE —

Good stock, good trade, good location. Reason for selling, bad health.—C. B. Morris, Druggist, Moscow, Ky. 8-19

There is more Catarrh in this section of the country than all other diseases put together, and until the last few years was supposed to be incurable. For a great many years doctors pronounced it a local disease and prescribed local remedies, and by constantly failing to cure with local treatment, pronounced it incurable. Science has proven Catarrh to be a constitutional disease, and therefore requires constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, Ohio, is the only Constitutional cure on the market. It is taken internally. It acts directly on the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. They offer one hundred dollars for any case it fails to cure. Send for circulars and testimonials.
